

A Warning

A man in a dark suit and blue tie is seated at a table, using a large knife to cut into a globe of the Earth. The globe is placed on a dark blue plate. The man is looking down at the globe with a focused expression. The background is a plain, light-colored wall.

Repent o people, and mend thy ways,
For dishonesty and crime, never pays.
Can mere gold and silver,
from judgement thou deliver?
Nay, my people, nay,
only goodness and kindness truly may.
By gold and silver indeed you are blinded,
Making you greedy, and money minded.
Hungry for wealth, thirsty for power,
Blinded by silver indeed you are.
The LORD himself is willing to forgive,
If your souls to him you are willing to give,
So repent, my people and mend your ways,
And see how holiness truly pays.
